

roberto rossellini PSYCHODRAMME

Francia/France, 1956, 51', bn/bw

PSYCHODRAMME

regia/director

Roberto Rossellini
collaborazione

scientifica/scientific collaboration

Anne Ancelin

Schützenberger,

Jacob Levi Moreno,
Zerka Moreno,

Enrico Fulchignoni,

Bernardo Blin,

Robert Prot,

Simone Charasson,

Jean Einis

collaborazione artistica/ artistic collaboration

André Rosch, Patrice

Galbean, Arielle Audrey,

Charles Marosi, René

Demagny, France Farnell,

Philippe Moreau, Wanda

Maya, Marie-France Rivière

fotografia/cinematography

Michel Gallon

operatori/camera operators

Claude Lelouch,

Homère Protopapas

montaggio/film editing

Michel Gallon,

Homère Protopapas

suono/sound

André Atger,

Jean Delanduc,

Louis Derosière,

Yves Gibier,

René Houzelle,

Charles Marie

produzione/production

Centre d'Etudes
de Radio Télévision

**

contatti/contacts

Archivio Nazionale

Cinema d'Impresa - CSC

Elena Testa

elena.testa@fondazionecsc.it

Roberto Rossellini (Roma, 1906-1977) ha cominciato a lavorare nel cinema durante il fascismo. Emerso nel dopoguerra con i capolavori neorealisti Roma città aperta (1945), Paisà (1946) e Germania anno zero (1947), ha poi realizzato opere che indagano la solitudine, l'alienazione e la crisi della coppia – Stromboli terra di Dio (1950), Europa 51 (1952), Viaggio in Italia (1954) –, sempre sorretto da uno stile sperimentale e aperto su una realtà indagata con sguardo soggettivo. Negli anni Sessanta è passato alla televisione dedicandosi al cinema storico e didascalico.

Roberto Rossellini (Rome, Italy, 1906-1977) began working in cinema during Fascism. During the post-war period, he created neo-realistic masterpieces like Rome Open City (1945), Paisà (1946) and Germany Year Zero (1947). He then made films which studied solitude, alienation and marital crisis – Stromboli (1950), The Greatest Love (1952) and Journey to Italy (1954). His films are backed up by an experimental style and study reality with a subjective outlook. In 1960s he began working in television, dedicating himself to historical and didactic cinema.

filmografia essenziale/ essential filmography

La nave bianca (1941), Un pilota ritorna (1942), L'uomo della croce (1943), Roma città aperta (1945), Paisà (1946), Germania anno zero (1947), L'amore (ep. Una voce umana, 1948), La macchina ammazzacattivi (1948), Stromboli terra di Dio (1950), Francesco giullare di Dio (1950), Europa 51 (1952), Dov'è la libertà (1953), Viaggio in Italia (1954), Giovanna d'Arco al rogo (1954), La paura (1954), Psychodrame (1956), India (1958), Il generale Della Rovere (1959), Era notte a Roma (1960), Viva l'Italia (1960), Vanina Vanini (1961), Anima nera (1962), La presa del potere da parte di Luigi XIV (tv, 1966), Atti degli apostoli (tv, 1968), Socrate (tv, 1970), Pascal (tv, 1971), Agostino d'Ippona (tv, 1972), Anno uno (1974), Il Messia (1975).

Psychodrame films Jacob Levi Moreno – who created the technique of psychodrama – as he works with a group of French TV actors. The mise-en-scène of three “psychodramas” which the professor staged with his assistant Anne Ancelin Schützenberger makes Rossellini reflect on a particularly congenial, potential acting technique, and, in general, on the potential of educational TV. But the topic launched by Moreno to spark the actors’ involvement in the psychodrama couldn’t help but interest him and, today in particular, it is very up-to-date.

Psychodrame has been identified by Sergio Toffetti at the Institut National de l'Audiovisuel in Paris, following the hint that came from by Marco Greco and Maria Cristina Sidoni of the Association Moreno Museum. Digital restauration curated by the Archivio Nazionale Cinema Impresa - CSC and Institut National de l'Audiovisuel in cooperation with Moreno Museum.